Description:
As a Security Engineer DLP, you may work with McAfee's DLP solutions to implement and maintain data loss prevention measures within an organization. McAfee's DLP solutions typically involve technologies and features such as content scanning, data classification, policy enforcement, and incident management to protect sensitive data from unauthorized access, leakage, or theft.
As a Security Engineer, you would be responsible for configuring and managing McAfee's DLP systems, creating and enforcing security policies, conducting risk assessments, monitoring and analyzing security events, and implementing incident response procedures. You may also collaborate with other teams to integrate McAfee's solutions with existing security infrastructure and ensure compliance with industry regulations and standards.
